A group of residents of Kendall and the surrounding area founded Foothills Friends in response to a proposal for a high density residential and commercial development in Kendall of 667 individual homes, plus an unknown number of attached and detached accessory units, on 73 acres, which is approximately 9 or 10 homes per acre, together with 100 multi-family units plus stores on 25 additional commercial acres, that would drop a ready made city into that quiet rural corner of Columbia Valley.

Foothills Friends is a citizens' watchdog group dedicated to preserving the rural character of eastern Whatcom County. We will work to ensure that future growth takes place in a manner that protects the environment, considers the well-being of all Foothills residents, local business owners, and visitors to our scenic recreation area, and reflects the needs of Foothills residents who will be living with the consequences of the decisions in the years to come.
